

Zen windows in Kyoto

Located at the very back of the temple grounds, Unryu-in is the most formal sub-temple in Sennyu-ji, which is known for being the family temple of the imperial family. An imperial mausoleum that houses emperors from throughout history is located in the mountains behind it. Guided by the chief priest, we will take you on a special after hours evening illuminated tour of the grounds, which are full of notablesights.

It is possible to view the landscape from shoji, paper sliding door windows cut out in a writing alcove permeated with the spirit of zen. A marvelous scene, it appears as though colorful paper has been set inside the shoji

This garden lantern was donated by Tokugawa Yoshinobu, the last shogun of the Tokugawa shogunate, and a chrysanthemum seal, the symbol of the imperial household, is drawn neatly on it in sand.
